

WEDNESDAY NIGHT WACKERS WIND UP FOR 3/08/05 "SLOWER«.OLDER«WIDER»>"

THE MASTER GETS BLASTED

POMS TAKE REVENGE FOR THE ASHES

ROUBLES ON THE RAMPAGE

What a night it must have been at the Wackerthon as the Wine Barrel could not remember a thing the next morning, a frantic ring around finally managed to gather up some scores and a few facts on the evening's rowdy celebrations. It appears that the After Party record was within reach when the bar sadly ran dry and the remaining Wackers tired of hearing the same old Master Blaster jokes and wisely decide to make their wonky ways home.

Missing in action again this week were the famed Brandy Order team of whom it was reported in the ever reliable Bondi Gazette, were undertaking relationship counselling before jetting off to repair the damage in a secluded, romantic south sea island resort. They may be shortly joined by a burnt out Short Black who broke Caprioska's long standing cursing decibel record in a display that left the Italian Stallion quite hoarse afterwards. Thankfully though he had enough energy left to serve up yet another delectable mezze plate to the delight of the ravenous Wackers to help start off the after party.

It was reported that on centre court the Man Mountain was so incensed with the play of partner, The Ball Toss that he delivered a 210 kph serve straight to the back of the Toss's head, the blow had the desired effect as they eventually ran out winners over Superman and The Master Blaster in what was an enthralling contest that went to 12-10 in the tiebreaker. The Mountain then teamed with the Master Blaster to try and teach the prancing Pommie pairing of Davis Cup and The Yuppie a lesson, after losing the first set 6/3, The Mountain Blasters regrouped to race away to a 5/2 lead in the second set before an uncharacteristic display from The Blaster left them shattered emotional wrecks after losing the set 5/7. "I was badly let down by my partner tonight" a mournful Mountain told reporters afterwards, "I mean the guy actually served 7 double faults in a row....Can you f%#*ing believe it?"

The new inductee of the evening, Super Mario combined elegantly with the Wacker elder statesman, The Legend and managed to do a Houdini coming from 2/5 down to prevail 7/5 over Swiss Cheese and the Wine Barrel who had to be carried off the court in a stretcher by 18 of the strongest Wackers. Arthur Ashe Stadium saw Mr Reflex snap into top gear with The Trader and winning a close one over The Kid and The Fox before The Trader teamed with the returning Artful Dodger in a memorable victory over Super Mario and Caprioska. The Fox and So Cool also teamed to add to the frustration of Short Black and The Kid and they proved to be a powerful pairing when they ran away with an easy victory.

Up on the graveyard court, Caprioska and The Artful Dodger blew away So Cool and Short Black in a set where the Russians won but sadly Caprioska actually lost and handed over his 'Best Curser' title to Short Black. Next match up there saw the old pairing of Mr Reflex and Swiss Cheese re-unite to show Superman and The Legend the finer arts of doubles play and gamesmanship.

"Put us up against the Pommies next week" boasted an elated Swiss Cheese afterwards. "Mr Reflex will send The Yuppies serves back with interest".

Vodafone Arena was the setting for one of the matches of the night when a rampaging Edwardo Roubles teamed with The Muff Diver to go down to the wire against the dazzling Davis Cup and Yuppie who just snuck up in the shadows of the post. After 10 hours of coaching Edwardo was still primed for a wack and he re-partnered Muffy to knock out Frog Legs and The Ball Toss in another hotly contested set.

Wackers of the night: Davis Cup, The Yuppie, The Artful Dodger

Drinker of the night: The Ball Toss
